MUTINY on THE BARK GLENN

Contributed by Howard W. Soule, Jr., Honolulu, Hawaii

The year was 1850 - in the days of sailing vessels, long voyages and flint lock muskets, when pirates, slave traders and gold seekers did desperate deeds. The month and the day, September 17, when the moon set at Midnight.

The Glenn, a snug little bark¹ of 287 tons, was built in S. Freeport, Maine, in 1848 in the Soule yards, and was commanded by Capt. Charles Small who was a native of that place. She sailed from there July 23rd, 1849, arriving in San Francisco, January 1st, 1850 where she discharged her cargo of house frames and provisions and left the crew and second mate, all Eastern men, in search of gold and adventure in California.

With an entirely new crew including Mr. Havens as second mate, the Glenn left San Francisco on April 18th in ballast for Valparaiso, where $30,000 in specie was taken on board to be carried to Erica in northern Chili. The coin was put in bags enclosed in boxes to conceal the fact that it was money but, in spite of the careful packing, it chinked.

The bark touched at Coquimbo where copper was taken on, then on to Erica, where the money was taken to the Custom House and 1,638 ceroons (worth $225.00 and weighing 150 lbs each) of Peruvian bark were added to the cargo.

With pleasant weather they set sail from Erica on August 30th for New York with everything apparently favorable for a good passage home.

The mates, Mr. Waite and Mr. Havens, were both men of ability and fairness in their dealings but Mr. Havens, who was over six feet and in the prime of life, was by far the most powerful man on board. The Captain was almost as tall but more slight of build and quite different in appearance, having heavy black hair and gray eyes and a nervous quickness of motion. A man of business ability and force, tempered with kindness which made him liked by his men and valued by his employers.

The crew was of the composite nature common to those times. The five seamen were: William Wood, of Connecticut, familiarly known as "Bill"; Roland Fleurand, a Frenchman, who had adopted the name of Holland, but was called "Frank" because of his nationality and his broken English; James Clements, a young, happy-go-lucky Irishman; Samuel Baker, who was an Englishman and older than the others, and Edward Douglas, tall dark and handsome in a bold way. He claimed to be only twenty-three but he had lived such a wondering life of varied experience that he appeared much older. On this occasion he was a combination of experienced seaman and carpenter. Thomas Hutchison, known as "Boy" although twenty years of life because of his greenness and the variety of his duties. Thomas Benson, a negro, short and thick set, served as cook and steward. Although none of the new crew had ever met before they shipped on the Glenn, they were now acquainted and seemingly on good terms and satisfied with their lot.

There were two watches. On the night of the 16th the larboard watch from eight to twelve, was composed of Wood, Baker and the Boy with Mr. Waite as officer of the watch, while Douglas, Clement and Holland made up the starboard watch from twelve to four. The cook always finished his work by eight and was not on duty again till five in the morning.

On this night Capt. Small retired, as usual, to his stateroom. which was aft on the starboard side of the cabin. He removed only his shoes and jacket as was his custom in order to be ready at an instant's notice in case of need. At two in the morning he was awakened by the report of a musket and a cry of murder. Recognizing the voice of Mr. Havens, the second mate, he sprang from his berth and made for Mr. Havens stateroom in the forward cabin on the port side thinking he must be having bad dreams, but found he was not there. Turning, he ran to the door on the starboard side at the front of the house, and saw Mr. Havens standing by the main hatch, holding on to the bitts to keep from falling. "What is the matter?" exclaimed Capt. Small. "I am murdered" answered Mr. Havens.

At that moment Douglas and Benson who were both standing not far from the wounded man on the starboard side and within six feet of the door, pointed muskets at Capt. Small. This was his first suspicion of trouble, so sly had been there preparations in removing the arms stored next to his stateroom.

Douglas, in a loud and surly voice, said "Go back to your room or I'll blow your brains out". Only too glad to go, thinking he could get his pistol, the Cpat. turned back only to find after a hasty search in the darkness, that they were gone from the drawer under the head of the berth, also the powder and balls. Hearing the sound of running over the top of the house from forward to aft, and to get out of such a trap, he rushed out of the other door where he was confronted by the aim of the musket in the hand of Douglas and the repeated order to go back. There being no alternative, he stepped back and immediately heard a key turned in the lock as Douglas gave the order to a keeper to fire to kill if the prisoner attempted to escape.

In desperation he felt all over the stateroom for the musket which he had kept concealed under his clothing for use in emergency. The musket was gone! To his relief, after what seemed like hours instead of minutes, he discovered his sword, which had been overlooked by the thieves, as it hung under a coat. There seemed but one way to escape--the little 13 x 17 window over his berth. He dropped his sword out first, then stretching himself through the opening, his great height enabled him to reach the rail, and so pull himself through. He picked up his sword, turned quickly and saw Benson on the house with what looked like a bayonet leveled on the keel of the overturned life-boat. Quickly but quietly he passed unobserved through the aft door of the cabin where the boy was in the act of lighting a lamp. By its light the Capt. could see Douglas near the after part of the forward house with musket aimed. Douglas fired, but the ball just grazed the hair on the side of the Captain's head and lodged in the wood above the door. Douglas came nearer. Capt. Small dodged to get out of range and at the same time knocked the pistol up with the sword. A second time Douglas aimed but this time so near the Captain could grasp the pistol, jerking it down so it went off between his own legs. He escaped this time with only the loss of a bit of skin from his little finger as the lock of the pistol snapped down.

Mr. Havens had been carried into the cabin and laid on the floor by the Boy, Hutchison and Wood, who had been aroused by the noise. Although wounded in three places - shot through the abdomen, the thigh pierced with a bayonet, and a deep cut in the back of the neck, only saved from being instantly killed by the thick collar of his heavy coat, he was still conscious and remained so till the last.

In passing the spot where the wounded man had stood the blood caused Capt. Small to slip. He recovered himself instantly and with his left hand he caught the musket Douglas held and clasped him around the knees with his right arm. At this Douglas cried "Rush on, boys! Now we have him!!"

In the meantime, Mr. Waite had awakened to the fact that something was wrong. He heard Mr. Haven's cry of murder and was out in time to hear the Captain ask what was the matter. Mr. Waite then hurried back to his room for his pistol, which was also missing. Next he heard Douglas order him to come on deck, adding that if he would come out they would not harm him, but if not, they would kill him. His first thought was to stay and defend himself as best he could, but on second thought decided to venture out. Seeing Capt. Small rush out ahead of him from the after cabin he followed. Then came the report of the musket and he arrived just in time to assist the Captain in his struggle with Douglas.

Mr. Waite seized Douglas by the head and between them they got him down in a bending position over some spars on deck. While holding him thus Mr. Waite grasped at the hand of Benson which held a sheath knife over him. It was jerked away just in time for him to encounter the edge which had been ground dirk fashion for the occasion. An instant after this cruel cut in his palm, came two blows from behind which were so stunning as to cause him to lose his grip. Douglas had dropped his weapon in the struggle during which one of the accomplices threw a musket and bayonet which passed under the Captain's right arm, while Douglas, being free from Mr. Waite, succeeded in getting possession of the Captain's sword.

Capt. Small caught at the musket which had been thrown at him, as it stood with the bayonet sticking four inches into the deck, passed it to Mr. Waite, and reached for another himself. Being so confused by the loss of their principal weapons and surprised and unprepared for the unexpected turn of affairs, the mutineers made wild throws of axes, knives, bayonets and carpenter's tools. They made a last advance and the Captain attempted to stab at Douglas in self-defense. Realizing they had lost, Douglas called, "Hold for a parley". "You give me my sword and I will give you a parley" answered Capt. Small. Douglas passed the sword point first, but, reminded of his breach of etiquette, he turned the hilt. "What is the meaning of all this" said the Captain. "We understood," answered Douglas "that the second mate was intending to shoot us". "If you have no better excuse than that", said Capt. Small, in a tone of disgust, "you'd better walk into the cabin and reflect on this night's business." Accordingly, Douglas went into the cabin, followed by Mr. Waite, who sat down on a chest to pull himself together, while the Captain went to gather up the weapons. He found four muskets with bayonets, one broad axe, a hatchet, two separate bayonet, two sheathe knives and one pistol. With these safe in his possession, and also a flask powder for his pistol, he went for the irons. Douglas, Enbson and Hutchison the boy were handcuffed and made to stay in the cabin to witness the agony of the dying man.

When quiet was restored, Wood came down from his hiding place. Clements who had been seen with a musket at the beginning of the fray, was sent to the wheel which Holland had deserted, thus leaving the bark to the mercy of the wind and weather while he was hiding in the gallery.

After Mr. Havens had been made as comfortable as possible on a mattress on the cabin floor he was able to talk between spasms of excruciating pain. When asked who shot him, he answered, "Ned" meaning Douglas, who denied it. After a few minutes the wounded man went on to say, "Why did you do it?" "Was it because I was too kind to you? Why didn't you finish while you were about it and not leave me to suffer so?" His remark that there was someone with a Scotch cap and jacket on also pointed the finger of suspicion at Clements who also denied it later, as Benson did also. With a last call for water and the words, "The day is soon coming when the truth will be known" he breathed his last after four hours of suffering. His body was sewed into a blanket, wrapped into a hammock with a weight at his feet and silently lowered into the sea.

Douglas was put into confinement between decks with irons on his ankles, stapled to the floor. Clements and Benson were treated in the same manner and put in separate staterooms. Feeling that there was reason to suspect the Boy, he was also put in irons three days later.

With one man removed by death, three men and the Boy prisoners, and the first mate with his left hand completely disabled and so weak from loss of blood as to be able to do nothing but keep the log, there were only five men left to do the work of ten.

They put back to Valparaiso.

Not being sure who could be trusted and knowing their ignorance of navigation, the Captain dared no sleep, except, as he afterwards said, with one eye open, sitting upright on the cabin floor with his back against the door and arms crossed, a pistol in one hand and his sword in the other. For thirteen days and thirteen nights he went without sleep although Mr. Waite, after a few days, was able to steer with one hand and take a turn at the lookout.

The most the Captain could gather from the prisoners was from Douglas who said there was a deep plot and that he had seen Benson put poison in the turtle soup when they were three days out from Valparaiso. This explained a sickness thought at the time to be due to a change of diet.

The prisoners were delivered to the Counsul, Mr. Z. W. Potter (in Valparaiso) who ordered them put on board the Preble, a sloop of war soon to sail for New York.

With the terrible strain removed from his mind, the reaction came. For forty-eight hours the Captain slept the most profound and dreamless sleep after which he 'came to' and made preparations for the homeward voyage. Mr. Waite remained as first mate. Wood was made second mate and new men were put into the places of the mutineers. Although the Glenn was an unusually fast sailing bark, and started three days before the Preble, the prisoners were safely landed in jail before the bark arrived in New York.

The trial began May 5th.

A small model of the Glenn was made and used for purposes of illustration as to location of events as given at the trial. During the testimony and cross-questioning it came out that what the ringleader, Douglas, had hinted about its being a deep plot was true. They had intended to kill the second mate instantly, hence the three attacks at once. They meant to get the Captain into their power for use in navigation since the lack of such knowledge on the part of the three was in their estimation, the only weak point in the plot. Douglas had attempted to shoot both mates at once while they were in conversation together, as he saw them through the glass in a door. Mr. Waite remembered having heard the click of the musket which failed to go off and hearing Mr. Havens say "What was that?" Seeing a rat in a trap which had been set some time before, they believed this explained the sound and thought no more about it. The musket was dropped overboard, as the quickest means of getting it out of sight.

It was not discovered, however, whether the mutineers still thought there was more money on board or thought only of the valuable cargo and the possibilities of making the bark into a slave ship as one of the officers had chanced to hear Douglas make the remark before the mutiny that it would make a good "slaver" if the house was removed. Two were found guilty and executed.

In those days, advices were always sent in advance of such a valuable cargo. The arrival of such a cargo without advices would have excited suspicion. They would not have dared dispose of it in New York, for instance but probably could have found an opportunity without any serious difficulty on the Pacific coast at that time.

The papers of the time told the story and highly praised Capt. Small and his officers, while the underwriters of New York, Philadelphia and Boston presented him with a check for $5,500, being "unwilling that such bravery and courage should go unnoticed." Five hundred dollars each was presented to Mr. Waite and to Mrs. Havens, the mother of the murdered second mate. Captain Small only sailed one other voyage, for the state of his health, as a result of what he himself termed "that ill-fated night", obliged him to retire altogether from the sea.

1708 Josiah Soule House

In the Duxbury Records, under the heading "Lands sold to defray the charges of building the New Meeting House", is the sale of land to Josiah Soule and Jonathan Peterson, cousins, and grandsons of George Soule the Mayflower Pilgrim. They bought one-hundred-fifty acres far from the Powder Point farms they grew up on. The new farm was near Keene's Brook, in what is now Ashdod Neighborhood, and here they built homes at the Northern end of the land and farmed together for some years, until 1713, when they reached an agreement on a division:

"... that whereas we the said Jonathan Peterson and Josiah Soule, did jointly together purchase in the year of our Lord One thousand Seven Hundred and Eight, a certain parcel or tract of land containing an hundred and fifty acres, it being also that tract of land whereon, we, the said Jonathan Peterson and Josiah Soule do now dwell, we the said Jonathan Peterson and Josiah Soule have agreed to divide the said land equally between us, that each of us might know his own respective part thereof...".

This agreement shows that although the town voted to sell land in 1706, some was still being sold two years later when, according to "the said Jonathan Peterson and Josiah Soule", the two cousins bought their tract.

Jonathan's house disappeared many years ago, but Josiah Soule's is still standing on his part of the original purchase. It was a small house, probably a Salt Box, with two stories in front and one in the rear under the sloping roof. The hewn timbers were of native wood, of several kinds, worked into a simple but sturdy house. Over the years rooms have been added, buildings moved on, and the roof line changed, but the original part is visible, plain enough to show just how the first house was.

The account of the division, diagonally across a rectangular 150 acres is odd, to say the least. The diagonal stone wall can still be traced, in parts, through the woods.

Today, two-hundred and sixty-three years later, on Union Street, Ashdod, on part of the one hundred and fifty acre tract, Walter and Ann Kopke live in the house that Josiah Soule built in 1708.

The Duxbury Rural and Historical Society has a project of dating old houses, putting a so-called DATE BOARD on each and sending a short write up to the local paper. Mrs. Wentworth is chairman of the project and researched the above article.

DUXBURY TOWN HISTORIAN, Mrs. Warren G. Wentworth reports: "The site of the homestead of George Soule, Pilgrim, disappeared many years ago, but it IS known. Also the grave site had long disappeared, but it's likely location can be pointed out with enough certainty to warrant a marker. Two rocks in the bay are named for a Soule: "Zachary's Rocks." So you can see that there still is some Soule history around Duxbury."

Since the site of the Soule homestead is known, we have suggested a cellar excavation. Such a project for both the Aldens and Howlands turned up many interesting Pilgrim artifacts for those families. ANYONE INTERESTED??

Oldest House in Halifax, Mass.

By DOROTHY KAVKA

What is reputed to be the oldest house in Halifax and at one time served as a stopping off place on the long foot journey from Plymouth up to the first Congregational church in Plymouth County is the creative domain of homemaker Mrs. Francis E. Devlin.

On part of the original land-grant of the Soule family, and remarkably preserved in its entirety from earliest days, the house has been traced to prior 1690 construction. Its ceiling beams and two-foot wide pine floors testify to the pristine splendor of forest growth throughout New England when it was built.

Sitting alongside Route 106 not far east from the junction of Route 58, the old "cape" is framed by two giant English ash trees planted, it is believed, when the Plymouth St. house was built.

Philadelphia historians once stopped to measure the girth of the trees, amazed to find a pair to equal or exceed the size of some planted by William Penn.

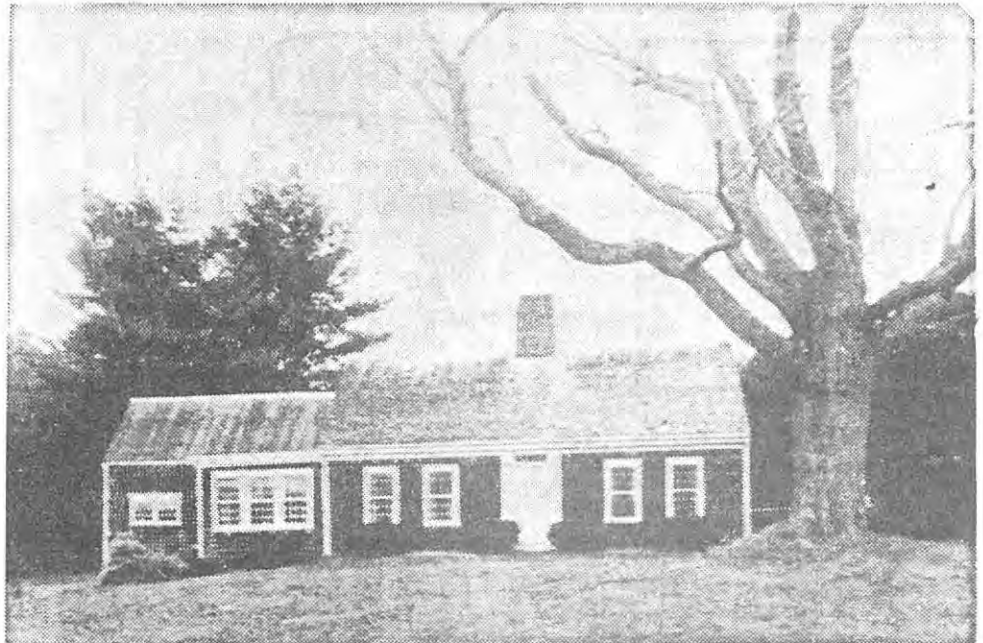

A Real Home

Without changing any of the physical attributes of the house and with only the addition of functional kitchen facilities and a sunroom on the front of the house, the Devlins have given the interesting old homestead the tender loving care it needed to make it a real home.

Mrs. Devlin with patient effort has stripped paneled walls and floors of generations of paint, to lay bare the native pine.

After driving into the spacious macadam parking area before the garage and walking up a flagstone path, one enters the house's side entrance. Mrs. Devlin keeps her plants close to the floral-draped windows of the sunroom which faces the west. There are easy-to-care-for wicker furniture, bookcases, cranberry scoop magazine stands, her husband's work desk, and her son's gun collection case gathered here. She is busy just now making new valances for the many windows.

Beyond, and invitingly warm and comfortable is the 40-foot living room whose paneled walls and mammoth central fireplace take one back into early colonial days. There is only crawl space under the pine flooring, so Mrs. Devlin has made thick braided rugs to help keep out drafts. She often sits braiding before the fireplace during winter evenings.

Devlin Home on Plymouth St.

The Challenge

With the original gunstock ends which framed up this house exposed and mammoth crossed ceiling beams making a pattern against the white plaster, the challenge to keep furnishings true to period has kept both Mr. and Mrs. Devlin alert to sales and auctions of antiques.

A pair of wingback chairs with ball and claw feet (replicas) face the fireplace and a pair of overstuffed chairs in dark green draw close to the sides of the fireplace whose mantel is lined with pewter tankards, plates, etc.

There is an antique fowl-ing piece and rustic painting above the fireplace, a Dutch oven to one side and dish storage cupboard at the other. The ancient cranes used to move hanging kettles about in the brick enclosed interior are still there with an antique bellows which matches the bellows shaped table they purchased at an auction.

Pine logs from their own woodland are piled outside for use in winter.

Effective Foil

At the farther end of the room a heavy gold leaf framed mirror has been hung in horizontal position against the plain pale gold wallpaper on the interior wall, an effective foil for the paneled wood-work which lines outside walls. Ruth Devlin made the matching pale gold lined drapes for the 12-over-12 paned windows.

Unusual Woodwork

Decor includes a Japanese Geisha antique figurine, a woodland farm scene painting, Queen Anne lace "natural" picture mounted on velvet, an old candle mold, individual kerosene lamps, large firkin Ruth keeps her wool for braiding stored in, and beside the bellows table a foot-warmer stove which has been converted into a lamp stand.

A rack of guns hangs on the outside wall above several duck decoys—Mr. Devlin's collection.

"Frank does the wallpapering throughout the house, and I do the painting and sanding of walls and furniture," explained Mrs. Devlin who has converted several cranberry scoops into magazine racks. She has also refinished several old chests and a Pembroke table, storing records for the stereo in one chest.

Off the rear side of the room the original "borning room" of the house serves as bedroom for the Devlin's son, Francis, Jr. Here their teenager, now off to preparatory school, indulges his hobby of antique car research, keeps sports equipment and other hobbies when home.

A real devotee of antique cars, he is building one "from chassis up" in the garage-barn of the house and often drives about the 20 acres of the Devlin property along the woodland paths which lead down to Monponsett Lake behind.

The end of the living-room closest to the sunroom is decorated with a hanging ox yoke, a Pettingill painting, old lantern and antique ornamental plates against the paneled walls.

A steep staircase at this end of the room leads, not to bedrooms above, but to the original open attic of the house, which Ruth Devlin uses for storage. A quartet of old pen and ink sketches of historic Boston line the wall space above the risers.

Original Plaster

The master bedroom leads off toward the street side of the house at one end of the fireplace. The original clam shell plaster of the walls has been retained, but has been covered above the white wainscoting with Colonial print Williamsburg paper by the Devlins.

There is a marble top table, banister rocker, handsome pine bedroom furniture, and the central fireplace second hearth is here. Pictures of their son at different ages line the mantel. The linen closet, a later innovation at the rear of the central fireplace, backs up to the bricks which line it, one of the few closets provided by an old house of this vintage.

Additional clothing storage space is provided by the front hallway, seldom used in an old house.

The dining room, on the other side of the central fireplace, has its own flue and brick hearth. But it is the panel work of this fireplace which is so unique. Cut out by hand and assembled in a copy of the old English Union Jack flag, it is more familiarly called a "witch's cross" fireplace and was originally a sign of wealth, since few homeowners could afford anything made individually in this pattern.

Only Two

On denuding it of paint and being curious about its origin, the present owners wrote to the Smithsonian Institute, who proclaimed it to be one of only two of such construction in Massachusetts; the other is at Salem in an historical dwelling. Since members of the pioneer Soule family were nautical men it is thought one of them might have carved it while at sea.

Furnishings of this room include a long trestle type table with ladderback chairs, a pine commode, "breadboard table," both antique, and a huge hutch whose shelves are devoted to collections of Irish Bealek lusterware tea set, Irish whiskey set and Sandwich glass, one piece being a bridal bowl in sterling holder Ruth treasures.

A modern kitchen whose woodworking Frank Devlin accomplished himself, proves functional and provides ease of movement in the kitchen ell of what once was a barn.

When the Devlins came here in 1950 they found it necessary to put in an adequate well for water which could be pumped to the house so dug down 87-feet for a supply of the coldest, clearest water to be found anywhere. Since, they have had town water, but still use the well for drinking water

Soule's Rest BROCKTON DAILY ENTERPRISE—JANUARY 13, 1971

By DOROTHY KAVKA

NOT THE oldest house in Halifax, but definitely one of the old Land Grant properties entrusted to the Soule family at about the time of the American Revolution, the roomy "Cape" home of Mrs. Robert Allaire, on Plymouth St. (Rte. 106) makes a challenging and interesting dwelling in which to use her creative talents. It is believed built in 1803.

The house, for which a first deed was passed in 1952 when it became part of the property of the Chase Animal Farm, had never before left the Soule family and its direct descendants. Generations of Halifax residents have known it as "Soules' Rest." Generations of Soules have lived and died in it. (An infant daughter, Susan, born one November, who died early that same winter, was buried temporarily in a cellarway crypt of the first structural room of the house until proper interment might take place in the spring.)

Foundations of the original one-room cabin on the estate may still be seen out behind the house; and the adjoining house, now the property of another owner, was once the winter quarters of the Soules. They live in what was formerly the "summer house" and extensive improvements had to be made both by the Chases and still later by the Allaires, to turn it into a comfortable home.

Now the Country Club golf course, tennis courts, and woodlands behind occupy much of the original 125 acres, many of the animal farm buildings remaining as visible mementoes of that short-lived enterprise.

SITTING, as the house does, upon a rise of ground along Route 106, although facing a drive to the west — as all houses in the early weather-conscious days of building did — a row of pine trees, set in by Mr. Allaire 10 years ago when they first moved in, now protects the house from a bald roadway view and will soon provide much privacy.

One enters the kitchen of the house at the back — an added room much younger than the two main rooms of the building — when the Allaires removed horizontal pine sheathing and turned it, after plank, to board in the wainscoting of the room in vertical fashion, papering it above.

There is an indoor-outdoor carpeting covering the rough pine boards of the floor to keep out the cold, since no cellar was ever dug beneath this room.

Kitchen

A room-divider work area and breakfast-snack bar separates the dining area from the utility area of the room and cabinets match the pine panelling, being furnished with traditional H and L hinges. Windows throughout the house are 12-over-one, a unique feature "you are mighty glad of after completing the cleaning of the smaller panes on top," according to Ann Allaire.

The family dines at a trestle pine table with captain's chairs. There are pine chests, a calendar school clock, rush-seated ladderback rocker and a hanging bracket on which are suspended the children's pewter cups. Ann regrets that the end-of-the-room fireplace, which had been added years ago when some Soule descendent lived there, was torn off to create more kitchen cupboard space.

ONE MOVES into the present family room (originally the cooking area of the house) where a huge central fireplace, with Dutch oven exposed, has been refitted with old crane and antique cauldron and spits. Ann, who is something of an artist, has painted the woodwork a Copenhagen blue, and the cabinet for the stereo to match, with Peter Hunt designs. A group of her original paintings, many of them nautical, hang on the wall just inside the door, the background coloring of the papery walls being a green-gold which changes with the time of day and amount of sun.

There's a nice Pembroke table supporting a crimson-shaded, brass-based Victorian lamp and a large braided rug Ann made to cover the wide-spaced pine floor boards. Hanging in the middle of the room is a tin reproduction of a 1700 lantern. A round marble-topped table and old spinning wheel contribute early atmosphere.

To the right, off this room, there are small rooms; one for a shower and bath; one for a cedar closet and storage; a third, an old pantry, now Ann's laundry and household storage nook.

On the opposite side of the room one door leads sharply upstairs to the bedrooms and another to the porch where the Allaire family are planning to build on an extra room for son, Stuart, 17. Their daughters, all younger, include Laura, 15; Lisa, almost 13; Jeanne, 9; and Marlene, 6.

First Room

To the left of the large fireplace a doorway, (at an angle) indicating a small burning room deleted on this side of the house, leads to the present parlor, the first room of the house. Here one may see the single exposed beam which formed the original framework of the roof.

The fireplace at the center, its frame carefully denuded of years of paint by Ann, is fitted with wrought iron fixtures and has a built-in, narrow-doored bookcase at the side. Green woodwork gives the room color and an old cradle in which several of her children were rocked stands by the fireplace. There is a large white-framed mirror on the outside wall and a handsome pine-cased Whiting grandfather clock with original brass finial. The Allaires celebrated their Christmas around a tree set up in this room.

Hall Decor

Moving to the front hall of the house, one discovers a handsome curved stairway with original tassel scrolling along the risers leading to the upstairs. The woodwork is painted in pale gold as complement to the Federal wallpaper, and lovely glass sidelights are at either side of the holy cross door with its unique finial overhead.

Ann Allaire's collection of bottles is arranged on glass shelves in the sidelights; some of these she obtained in exchange for portraits she has painted for friends. Overhead there's an authentic Paul Revere lantern which the Allaires have electrified.

A MATCHING front room, on the other side of the door, now the bedroom for two of the Allaire daughters, has a handsome Adams fireplace mantel, a tassel-rolled wainscoting trim, painted in French blue with Federal blue and white wallpaper harmonizing with the twin-bed white spreads. With only crawl space under this floor Ann made braided rugs in blues for warmth here.

Mounting to the bedrooms, the original, low-ceilinged master room of the early structure boasts an antique shaving mirror on cherry dresser—both old. More of Ann's collection of old bottles are arranged here, and there's a dainty floral printed wallpaper in golds.

Coffin Cover

It was in the unfinished storage space behind this room the family discovered souvenirs of the Soule family in the form of a citation for distinguished service for Charles W. Soule, Co. A., 3rd Reg., Massachusetts Volunteers, and the lid of the coffin in which his body was sent home to his father from the Civil War. The citation was dated 1870 and along with it, behind floor boards which they salvaged for cabinet work in the kitchen, they discovered an old Yankee uniform in shreds from which they saved the gilt buttons.

Upstairs, to the front of the unfinished walk-space behind the chimney are a bathroom, closets and girls' dormer bedroom with salmon pink walls above a neat chalkboard and desk combination their father, an employee of the telephone company, made for them.

The eaves along the slope of the roof here make ideal storage space and Ann keeps her sewing machine in the real hallway for mending and sewing projects. Sometimes she'd like to have her own studio to enable her to do serious painting, but feels it would have to be entirely remote from the house for the concentration required. Nowadays she's too busy and only can tackle smaller projects or paint portraits at church fairs. She has studied art locally for a number of years.

NOT ONE to make an arduous chore of housework or cooking, Ann Allaire enjoys country living and is able to "make do" with current household challenges while postponing some of the improvements she'd like to make in the house. The first years she lived in the quaint, patchwork house she had a garden but has given it up due to family demands on her time. However, they all tackled the painting of the house's shutters the first year, the putting of its windows the next, and are still in process of painting the entire combination clapboarded and shingled house.

For the holiday, as for all festive occasions or when she is called upon to bring a dish, she makes an easy hors d'oeuvres dish everybody likes. It's sauted mushroom caps and shrimp in butter with a garlic soy sauce, and may be kept warm in a chafing dish and served on toothpicks, saving dishes.

ANN WOULD rather both she and the girls enjoyed the outdoors and such sports as horseback riding and sailing than to spend long hours in the kitchen doing things with flour and shortening. Despite the fact she claims not to like to cook her children all look healthy and happy. So do Meco, the Siamese cat, and Nickie, the airdale.

CURIOUS FACTS

Your Billions of Ancestors

Did you ever think how many male and female ancestors were required to bring you into the world? First, it was necessary that you should have a father and mother; that makes two beings. Each of them must have had a father and mother; that makes four more. Again, each of them must have had a father and mother, making eight more human beings. So on we go to the time of Jesus Christ, 56 generations, the calculations thus resulting shows that 139,235,017,489,534,976 births must have taken place to bring you into this world. All this since the birth of Christ—not since the beginning of time. According to Proctor, if from a single pair for 5000 years each husband and wife had married at 21 years of age and there had been no deaths the population of the earth would be 2,199,915 followed by 144 ciphers. It would require to hold this population a number of worlds the size of this earth equal to 3,166,526 followed by 125 ciphers. The human mind shrinks in contemplating such immense numbers.

SOULE NEWS

There is a good reason for the late publication of the January Soule Newsletter: Our Family Historian, COL. JOHN SOULE was called to jury duty and had to serve for one whole month and therefore our whole issue was delayed. Considering the state of law and order in Washington D. C. however, we should not begrudge his service.

ADELIA (ROSASCO) SOULE, Col. John's famous wife writes: From Linda (Soule) Preston and son John Soule Preston, we hear that our bi-lingual grandson has the combined wits of all the Soule, Rorasco, Atkinson, Schiaffino kin; that he can tell by a person's accent whether the speaker's mother tongue be English or one of the Latin ones. (John is 4 years old. Ed.) In Aspen, Colorado, last summer, he met up with a Mexican nannie who spoke to him in English. Linda said that Johnnie looked her over; studied a moment, (the wheels turning in his head), then spoke to her in Italian. He knew that English spoken as she spoke it, was out of a Latin mouth. The conversation continued: she in Spanish; he, in Italian; both happily satisfied.

Col. John and Adelia also have a son, PETER SOULE who lives with his wife in Meudun, near Paris, France.

As many of you know, the DELTA QUEEN, the oldest & last of the paddle-wheel river boats was due to be retired this year (since it does not meet modern fire-safety regulations) but has been saved by a special act of Congress for the time being. Col. Soule & his wife Adelia were lucky enough to take a trip on the Delta Queen last year, up the Ohio from Cincinnati, down the Tennessee to the Kentucky Lakes; passing en route the Swiss Alps of the U. S. and the Tuhur Valley of this Country.

Sooner Descendants of Mayflower Passengers Get Christmas Surprise

With Christmas approaching, some Oklahomans who are descendants of the Mayflower passengers were surprised to learn Saturday that the Pilgrims did not celebrate the birthday of Christ.

The Pilgrims were separatists in religion and refused to accept organized, pre-formed religious worship.

Oklahoma members of the Society of Mayflower Descendants met for luncheon Saturday in their annual get-together to memorialize their ancestors who landed at Plymouth Rock in 1620.

Their speaker was the Rev. William Neff Jr., elder general of the Mayflower Society and pastor of St. Andrews Presbyterian Church in Tulsa.

Clad in Pilgrim costume, he told the members several little known facts about their ancestors.

He said the Pilgrims left England to get away from the religious problems.

"Christmas was one of the things they left England to get away from," Neff said.

"It is hard for us to believe, but Christmas was not a holiday in New England for many, many years."

He also said that songs commonly thought of today as Negro spirituals are actually "white spirituals" and their forerunners were songs brought to America by the Pilgrims.

The form of the songs is the same — a leader sings one line and a chorus follows with the remainder of the verse. The songs blossomed in towns throughout the country at camp meetings and were taken over by the Negroes, he said.

The Oklahoma Society, now 444 strong, was formed in 1947, 50 years after the national society was organized.

Membership requirements are that a person prove that he is a descendant of one of the 23 families that sailed on the Mayflower.

Neff said that libraries and the Oklahoma Historical Society have on file books giving all Oklahomans who have been allowed membership and a Mayflower Index showing all of the 18,000 members nationwide.

He encouraged persons to begin studying their past to see if they possibly had a Mayflower ancestor.

"We have only scratched the surface of those who have some lineage back to the original 23 families," he said.

He said such study helps show persons they are "a part of history."

He said many present day members in Oklahoma and in the nation are ninth, 10th and 11th generation descendants.

The Oklahoma members and their guests met for lunch in the Petroleum Club in Oklahoma City. Their annual meeting always comes around Thanksgiving time and their meal, of course, was turkey and dressing.

THE SUNDAY OKLAHOMAN

December 13, 1970

Two Oklahomans attending the above meeting were Mr. and Mrs. CLAYTON E. SOULE of Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. (Soule Kindred number 5235-X) Clayton, a retired electrical engineer of Oklahoma Gas & Electric Company, enjoys the Mayflower Society, Camera Club, and Boy Scout work as hobbies.

Hobby Reveals Family Trees

Mrs. Mary Crismore reads from her newly-published genealogy on "The Crismore Family." Back of her are credentials of membership in the National Genealogical Society, DAR, and Mayflower Society, and a copy of the Compact of those coming over on the Mayflower—among them one of her ancestors.

"North Side Topics," Jul 70, Ind., Indiana

§ We are happy to report that cousin Mary above was elected Historian for the Indiana Mayflower Society in November. Mary (Thomas) Crismore's Soule Kindred number is: 113601. She is 11th generation from the Mayflower.

Family trees often bring to light skeletons in the closets, but in North Sider Mrs. Mary (Frank) Crismore's genealogy studies over the last few years she's found her family to be the 11th generation from the Mayflower Pilgrims.

Sir Francis Drake, famous navigator who was knighted by Queen Elizabeth had a brother Thomas—her ancestor.

Time To 'Dig'

Since her retirement in June from her position as benefits and insurance officer in the Personnel Department at the Indiana University Medical Center, Mrs. Crismore says "I'll have time to really 'dig.'"

Mrs. Crismore, whose hobby is genealogy, haunts grave yards for tombstone markers, court houses for deeds of property, death records, and marriage licenses, churches for church records, and old Bibles—and spends much time in the Indiana State Library.

It all started several years ago when she decided to write a genealogy on her husband Frank's family. So that she would know "how to go at it" she enrolled in a genealogy class in 1967, taught by Mrs. Betty L. McCoy, who is now teaching such a course at Purdue University Extension.

After Mrs. Crismore received her certificate she started to write a genealogy. Now completed with 217 names, the book is dedicated to her husband "who is a good driver and takes me on all my jaunts" and her two sons.

In her book she tells about a personal property sale of Potty Cyphers, her great, great grandmother, who moved from Kentucky to Indiana with seven small children after her husband's death.

'Bowdering Tubbs'

Among the bill of sale items were "bowdering tubbs" used for making flax; biggin and piggin wooden tubs, one with handles and one without.

"It wasn't easy to figure out many terms," she commented, "but you couldn't rest until you found the answer."

The book on the Crismore family was sold to 80 family members as well as being shelved in certain libraries. It dates back to 1808 and the family has a German origin.

800 Names

Her present book on the Thomas family goes much farther back into the lives of probably about 800 names, dating to the 1600's.

Mrs. Crismore wants to form a genealogy society to assist members and interested people in exchanging records in the Indianapolis area.

She is a member of the National Genealogical Society, the Mayflower Society, and Daughters of the American Revolution. Her great, great grandfather, Oliver Drake, was a captain in the American Revolutionary War. Draketown, Pennsylvania, is named for him.

In the future she plans a trip to England, Scotland, Wales, and Germany where she hopes to trace both family trees of the Thomases and Crismores.

Things-We-Never-Knew Dept.

History tells us that on the 21st of November, 1620, the Mayflower dropped anchor off the coast of Massachusetts at what is now Cape Cod. After a search for a suitable place to put in and begin building a colony, the ship's gallant company did so at Plymouth.

The Mayflower, the Pilgrims, Plymouth Rock; all are well known to us. But why did our Puritan progenitors stop where they did? They had, after all, intended to sail to Virginia.

Hold on to your hat. It appears that one of the main reasons that these virtuous folk put ashore there was because they ran out of beer.

Yep, a journal of the voyage published in 1622 reveals that the moral stigma attached to the use of spirituous drink was either overlooked or non-existent as far as those Pilgrims were concerned. "... for we could not now take time for further search or consideration: our victuals being much spent, especially our beer."

The makers of junior's history book in all probability overlooked this bit of info for one reason or another, but Collier's Encyclopaedia didn't. You'll find it under 'Beer.' On page 772 to be exact.

Aqua Lungs and Plankton

October 1, 1970 - Brighton-Pittsford Post

The Future-Loaded Past of Marguerite Soule 'Sinkable' Mrs. Shoemaker

By Rosemary Robinson

Plankton, the sea's answer to earth's food supply panic, is as familiar to Marguerite S. Shoemaker as Ralston. Her yesterdays may be everybody else's tomorrow.

Thirty-five years ago she and other laboratory workers in the Bahamas actually tasted Plankton, the highly developed source of protein that can be either plant life (Phyto) or animal (Zoo). She described it as palatable -- "tastes a lot like the cereal Ralston".

Living in Bushnell's Basin in secluded Hidden Hollow, it probably seems like another lifetime ago that she and other pioneers of the sea made the first tentative steps toward sea safety and discovery.

"There were all kinds of facets then," she said. "At one point I was testing aqua lung equipment. Another time my late husband and I were with Bob Schiller at Marine Land trying to pick up some idea of what porpoises were talking about.

"Heavens, this was about 40 years ago. Now, of course, with the houses-under-the-sea in the Pacific, the Navy is training porpoises to take things down to them. At the time we were first studying them, though there wasn't all this interest.

"I think you can best understand the sound they make by thinking of the whine of a buggy whip when you swing it.

"Today, countries are beginning to realize what it could mean to have the rights to the sea's supply of Plankton to name just one potential and the more they realize it the hotter the issue of boundaries is going to get.

"On the surface, the United States claims national sovereignty out to the 3-mile limit, but some nations claim sovereignty to 12 miles out. And now ocean talks are taking place to discover permanent limits. So far there is no international court or other tribunal authorized to make such decisions.

* * *

Spoken from her living room, replete with valuable antiques and facing out onto a bird-feeder backed up by a tiny woods, Mrs. Shoemaker's next words sounded out of the future.

"Jurisdiction over ocean bottoms is likely to be even more far-reaching and important to all the nations involved."

But the incongruity is explained when you realize that in Mrs. Shoemaker's past are names like Jacques Costeau of the diving saucer, Dr. Hilary Moore of the Miami Marine Lab., Dr. Harold Edgerton who invented the undersea camera, Prof. Augustus Piccard, and Rear Adm. Nichols, USN.

All these men, most of them famous, touched her life. And after speaking of Rear Adm. Nichols she adds a footnote, "He helped to get me into Monaco."

This miniature country which ironically became more famous for the Prince Rainier-

Grace Kelley courtship than its early marine research, was off limits to anyone without a doctorate, Mrs. Shoemaker said.

"Dr. Edgerton said 'nonsense, go over and we'll contact Rear Adm. Nichols.'

"He got acceptance for me. This was a quarter of a century ago and they were doing fantastic things, studying the brain of an octopus with electric currents."

* * *

Because Mrs. Shoemaker was there with some of the forerunners of the sea searchers, none of its secrets and possibilities seem remote or unbelievable to her.

"The sea's harvest is really something," she said.

"Besides food like Plankton and fish, and chemicals like gold, silver copper and zinc, they're finding wonderful scientific discoveries -- like Sea-Snake venom that may produce a fast-working blood coagulant . . . and mussel poison (found in mussels that have eaten toxic microscopic organisms) could give a local anesthetic thousands of times more powerful than cocaine.

* * *

But invariably she harkens back to the protein-laden, vital Plankton.

"With the farms going, Plankton will just have to be a main source of protein.

"This is what we'll turn to for food supply," she said.

"Scientists are working today to get rid of the grittiness. This is the silicone shell. But we ate it years ago even with the silicone and it wasn't unpalatable."

The plant Plankton just drifts she said, while the animal Plankton rises to the surface after dark and feeds there. Then it goes to deeper water (500 to 1000 feet).

"You could describe it as a solid mass, a milky concentrate of particles. The scientists go down with special silk-base nets and pick it up.

"Once when Prof. Piccard's Bathescope was being tested (a sub constructed for underwater research) they took a scientist down with them and he almost went crazy because the water was thick as pea soup with Plankton."

Mrs. Shoemaker's Future-Filled Past

In technical journals explaining Plankton it's called the "grass of the sea" and compared to hay in nutrition. It depends on sunlight and nutrients for its existence.

"These microscopic one-celled organisms take chemicals from the sea and energy from the sun, and by the miracle of photosynthesis produce the sugars and starches which are the breadstuff of all life."

One sea story Mrs. Shoemaker tells that's a far cry from her present mode of life, involving the semi-retired sale of an antique or two, is about an octopus, which was something of a specialty with her.

"The octopus is the most intelligent of all the invertebrate," she said, and when I was working with Schiller at the Marine Lab we put a crab (the octopus' favorite diet) under a can. The octopus was curled up in the corner, but he smelled it and watched us put it there. They're very timid but finally he went out to get it and gently touched the can with one of his tentacles. He kept feeling the can as though remarking on the fact that he'd never encountered anything like that before."

When he discovered he couldn't reach the crab, he went back to his corner, trembled and turned red with anger, Mrs. Shoemaker said.

But once his temper tantrum was behind him, she said, he was tested again--he got it.

* * *

What's so dramatically singular about Mrs. Shoemaker's background is that each year the things she delved into become more important--in the news and in the world's scheme of things.

The undersea houses and the next big step, five undersea bases planned by the U.S. by 1973, are possible because of the pioneers with the aqua lung.

Marguerite S. Shoemaker in her Perinton home today.

Scientific study has advanced medically with new findings, but the world is still marvelling over Plankton which Mrs. Shoemaker's cohorts took turns nibbling at more than a quarter century ago.

Only increasing fame marks the men she worked with.

"I ran into these really big men and they made fabulous gestures to give me authentic information."

For many years afterward, Mrs. Shoemaker toured the country, making use of these gestures by turning them into a lecture series. It became a smash tour because, as she puts it, "In those days I was the fustest with the mostest. It was a novelty, my being a woman and doing deep sea diving and all. In those days it wasn't a sport or even a profession. It was brand new."

It was more. It was tiring and dangerous, the diver's suit shoes weighed 35 pounds each, the chest and back plates 75 pounds. A relatively small woman, Mrs. Shoemaker must have dove on courage rather than brawn.

How her life took this channel seems part of the natural course of things.

About 40 years ago, she was teaching swimming and life-saving in Baltimore, Md., and in Canandaigua.

"There were so many drowning accidents. I'd dive and dive but it wasn't enough. I kept thinking if only I could stay down longer, go deeper. This was the stimulus, I guess. Then I was asked to judge some divers at YMCA in Baltimore and met Bob Zimmerman (he's 89 now). He was lecturing on undersea study. We got to know him and found he was planning to take 12 boys from London to do ocean research at Mangrove Cay, Southeast of Andros in the Bahamas.

Her son, William S. Shoemaker of 24 Laird Rd., Bushnell's Basin, who later majored in oceanography and is now director of photographic arts and sciences at Rochester Institute of Technology, was then only 15. He asked and got permission to go, and he came back so loaded with facts, enthusiasm and self-confidence he did some lecturing himself.

The following year, Mrs. Shoemaker and Bill went back and joined a scientific group studying fish, collecting, dissecting and preserving marine life. "We weren't bothered much by natives. The smell kept them away."

Mrs. Shoemaker also did some experimental diving.

The next adventure was the result. Diving was coming in and Mrs. S. had heard of numerous young people losing their lives with faulty home-made equipment and lack of know-how. She set out on a tour, lecturing on the aqua lung at high schools, and warning them what could go wrong in diving and how to cope with it.

"I told them to go to it," she said, "but to become informed first."

She was the first woman to have an aqua lung after World War 2.

"The French aqua lungs were rotten. They had rubber tubes like an accordion and would split in the divisions. Two Navy frogmen instructed me how to handle myself in the ocean."

* * *

She had one occasion during the 1940's to stop at the West Coast, at Scripps College.

"They were checking out fish that were poison to touch besides those poison to eat because scuba diving had come into being and divers were grabbing at things - some as poisonous as a cobra".

She considers Scripps as having the finest diving classes in the U.S.

"If you want to go down over 100 feet you have to be judged psychologically. I think they're the only place that demands this. When you go very deep you become 'intoxicated' and might take out your mouthpiece and offer it to a fish. With the tests they get to know who'll stand up and who won't."

* * *

The indefatigable Mrs. Shoemaker kept on lecturing and reading up on the sea until this year when a fall resulted in activated arthritis that has her confined in body, but not in spirit.

The above article on Marguerite Soule Shoemaker reminds your editor that we have several cousins interested in Marine research. Cousin GARDNER SOULE has just published two books, "The Greatest Depths: Probing the Seas to 20,000 Feet and Below" and "Wide Ocean: Discoveries at Sea." Write-ups on these two books are in the last Soule Newsletter, Vol. IV, No. 4 page 207.

Work Will Start Soon On Plans

Comprehensive planning is a necessity for cities in this modern era, says W. F. Soules, a man experienced in the field who knows what he's talking about.

He's head of W. F. Soules and Associates of Waco, the oldest consulting engineering firm in the city. Organized in 1957, it obtained a charter of incorporation in 1958. A staff of sixteen operates out of its offices at 1601 Columbus in Waco.

The firm has been awarded contracts to prepare comprehensive plans for Northcrest and Lacy-Lakeview. All necessary paper work by federal, state, and local governments should be completed soon, with work to get under way in the near future.

It is well experienced in planning. In October 1967 it completed an initial strategy study for a regional planning commission that later evolved into Heart Of Texas Council of Governments. It has done a lot of work for the City of Waco on bond programs.

It completed comprehensive plans for Bellmead in 1968 and for Woodway in early 1969. It serves as the engineering department for Bellmead and Woodway. Responsibilities include continual updating of the comprehensive plans.

Paul Garza of Laredo, professional engineer and certified urban planner by the state, is the designated planner in charge of the Northcrest and Lakeview projects. He worked with Soules on Woodway and Bellmead, and so far he has completed planning programs for 23 Texas cities.

A former Waco resident, at one time he was employed in the City of Waco planning department. Mr. Soules is looking forward to working with him again. Mr. Garza not only has high qualifications for his work but a high enthusiasm for it too. "When he gets into something he really gets involved," said Mr. Soules. "He lives it and breathes it. He's a remarkable man."

Enthusiasm must be engendered in the two cities if the plans are to accomplish their purposes. "The idea is to find out what the people want their cities to be," said Mr. Soules. "There should be town meetings, a planning commission with subcommittees--a minimum of 200 residents in each city should have participated directly in the program by the time it is completed."

"Elected officials usually drop out of the picture after appointing committees. Their next responsibility after that--other than continual encouragement of citizen participation--is implementation of the plan itself."

Public participation cannot be emphasized too greatly, said Mr. Soules. "If any other plan evolves, regardless of whether or not it appears to be good to city officials and planners, if it does not have the acceptance of citizens it will be impossible to be accomplished."

What are some of the goals of a comprehensive plan? Here are a few:

1. Determining the city's economic base, both at present and in the future. For example, at the time of completion of their plans the average income of Bellmead families was a little over $5,000 per year and that of Woodway families was slightly over $9,000. Determining the average family income along with other pertinent economic factors such as industrial and commercial development helps citizens determine the quality of city services they can expect to receive as well as be able to pay for.

2. A land use survey, a relatively new concept so far as cities are concerned. In the past cities developed without much direction or planning, with the result that problems and extra expenses materialized that could have been avoided.

One example is the new Loop 340 construction project, soon to get underway in Bellmead. Six brick duplex structures, all less than ten years old, will have to be removed for the highway to go through. The state will have to pay for the value of that property with its improvements, twelve families will be displaced, and the City of Bellmead will have to relocate utilities. It would have been a lot better and less expensive if the property had been acquired for public use while it was still undeveloped land, Mr. Soules said.

"With a land use plan, regardless of the speed in which a city develops, governing bodies are able to solve such problems before they develop. The money saved in extending utilities and in designing traffic circulation is itself worth tenfold the cost of the comprehensive plan," he said.

Another aspect of land use concerns the recurring headlines on such subjects as pollution, quality of life, etc. "We have to plan to maintain our environment even at its present level," said Mr. Soules, "and especially we have to plan to upgrade it." He reported that cities are now concerned with maintaining a proper balance of parks, single and multiple family dwellings, commercial and industrial, and institutional facilities for various areas.

3. Administrative controls. A study of existing ordinances and administrative procedures with recommendations on how to modernize them so the city can effectively perform its existing responsibilities and in addition carry out the comprehensive plan.

Setting up priorities, the final phase. Necessities are determined that should be taken care of during the first five years after the plan is completed. They may or may not include public works project, public housing projects, acquisition and development of parks, construction of public buildings etc.

Another reason for having a comprehensive plan is that if a city is to avail itself of federal funds for any type of project it has to have one.

"Now the federal government will not even consider funding a project that is not presented to be an integral project part of a well-planned goal, locally and regionally," said Mr. Soules. In the case of Northcrest and Lacy-Lakeview this means that requests for such funds must not only tie into local development but also into regional planning being made by Heart Of Texas Council of Governments.

Federal funds might be obtained for such projects as public housing, parks, water and sewer extensions, and drainage projects. Obtaining such funds is not a sure thing. Mr. Soules pointed out that competition for them nationwide is terrific. But a city doesn't have a chance without a comprehensive plan.

The plans for Northcrest and Lacy-Lakeview will be both joint and individual projects. Since the two cities adjoin each other they have common problems to be attended to. But individual problems will be considered separately as residents of each city determine how they want their hometown to develop. Each city will receive its own individual comprehensive plan at the end of the project.

W. F. Soules - Plans -

The cost will amount to $6,800 each, with the major portion to be paid for by the federal government and with Cooper Foundation of Waco providing $2,040 to each to offset local cost.

While the expenses will be borne by the federal government and a private foundation the major responsibility for success still lies with local residents.

Mr. Soules advised them to "get involved" as the work gets underway in the next few weeks. "Attend the meetings, be willing to serve on the various committees," he said. "It's your city. The more you contribute to its comprehensive plan the better the plan will be, and, ultimately, the better your city will be."

CHAMPIONS OFF TO DALLAS

Coldwater's regional champions, accompanied by their coaches, several parents and other ardent fans, left the city this morning on the first leg of their journey to Dallas, Texas, to compete in the 1970 Mickey Mantle World Series.

The group traveled by school bus to Detroit Metropolitan airport where they were to board a Braniff jetliner at 1 p.m. for the flight to Dallas.

Tonight, along with the seven other regional champion nines, they will be hosted at a pre-tourney banquet.

The Cardinals will see their first action in the double elimination tournament at 3:30 p.m. (Texas and Coldwater time) Friday. Their opponent will be the winner of the North Atlantic regional tournament played last weekend in Waterbury, Conn.

Yesterday morning, the team lacked $800 of having enough to cover its expenses. Donations poured in during the day and by nightfall there was more than enough to cover the estimated cost of $2,700.

As a matter of fact, when the money was counted it totaled $3,100!

Co-Manager Eugene Sowles announced before takeoff this morning that any monies left over will be ear-marked to help cover the cost of moving the main stopback at Cardinal Field before another season rolls around.

"I couldn't believe the quick response," he added. "It was simply wonderful and it helps to know that the whole town is really pulling for you 100 per cent."

Among the 14 parents and other fans paying their own fares and accompanying the team were two members of Coldwater high school's team, Tom Sowles and Denny Scheidler.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John LeRoy Arkwright of Corpus Christi, and the bridegroom's parents are Dr. and Mrs. Francis Gordon Soule, Jr. of Andover, Massachusetts. Monsignor Ernest J. Miller performed the 3 o'clock ceremony, and the bride's cousins, Steven and Bill Arkwright were altar boys.

§ Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of antique ivory organza and re-embroidered Alencon lace in a rosepoint design over peau de soie. Her floor length veil of illusion was appliqued with Alencon lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses.

§ Attending her as maid of honor was her sister, Miss Nancy Ruth Arkwright, and as bridesmaids were Miss Anne Holmes of Odessa, Texas, and Mrs. Jeffrey Segars of Corpus Christi. Their wine colored velvet gowns were trimmed with ecru Irish lace and they carried cascade bouquets of white mums with Christmas greens and baubles.

§ Richard Mansfield Soule of Andover, Massachusetts, was his brother's best man, and the groomsmen were Ltjg. Gary Lee, U. S. N. R. of Oakland, California and Lt. Marshall Lind, U. S. N. R. of Santa Monica, California. Honorary attendants were Thomas Dennis Arkwright of Montreal, Canada, and Robert Ragle Soule of Andover, brothers of the bride and groom.

§ Following a reception at Pharaohs Country Club the couple left on a wedding trip to the Eastern United States and Canada, after which they will be at home in Corpus Christi.

§ The former Miss Arkwright, a teacher, was graduated from Southwest Texas State University with the class of 1970. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Dwight Frederick Lewis and the late Mr. Lewis, and Mrs. Dennis LeRoy Arkwright and the late Mr. Arkwright, all of Des Moines, Iowa.

§ Lt. Soule is a 1967 graduate of George Washington University, and is presently an instructor pilot at the Corpus Christi Naval Air Station, representing the third generation to follow a Navy career; both his father and maternal grandfather are retired Medical Corps Officers, holding the rank of Captain, U. Soule Appointed Acting Secretary

Howard Soule, member of the Board of Directors of Phi Delta Kappa and former district representative from District II, was appointed by the Board of Directors at its August meeting to serve as Acting Executive Secretary for the interim period preceding the selection, employment, and assumption of duties of a permanent Executive Secretary. It was stipulated that Soule will retain his position as a National Officer of the fraternity but that he would not be a candidate for the permanent secretaryship.

Soule, a graduate of the University of Redlands, with a master's degree from the University of Colorado, recently retired from his position as principal of the Edison School in Phoenix, Arizona.

Soule is a member and past president of the Arizona Education Association and of the Phoenix Elementary Administrators and is a life member of the National Education Association. He has been a member of Phi Delta Kappa since 1943, serving successively as secretary, vice-president, and president of the Phoenix field chapter; coordinator for the Arizona-New Mexico area, district representative for District II; and Board of Directors member for three terms.

The new Acting Executive Secretary is an elder of the Sunnyslope Presbyterian Church in Phoenix. He has been active in YMCA, Girl Scout, and Boy Scout work and is a past president of both the Toastmasters Club and Sertoma. Other organizations that have claimed his interest include World Tapes for Education, the Arizona Cactus and Native Floral Society, the Photographic Society of America, the Camera Collectors Club, and the Phoenix Executive Club.

Soule and his wife Jean Paulyne are the parents of a son and daughter, both married.

He arrived in Bloomington to take up his new duties on September 1.

At the same meeting the Board took first steps in establishing procedures for the selection of a permanent executive secretary. It passed a motion providing that the national officers, with the possible addition of two other persons to be selected by the national officers, comprise a screening committee for the purpose of identifying candidates for the position of executive secretary; and that no person who intends to be a candidate shall serve on this screening committee.

Dr. Robert C. Soule Elected National President

Dr. Robert C. Soule was elected without opposition to the National Presidency of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia for the 1970-73 triennium by the 1970 National Delegate Representative Assembly.

Soule, an initiate of Beta Gamma Chapter, Columbia University, served as Governor of Province 1 (New England) until 1964 when he was elected to a six-year term as National Executive Committeeman. He had served on the committee from 1962 to 1964 as a representative of the Province Governors's Council. His six-year term was interrupted in 1967 when he was elected Second Vice President. Following the death of Harry Robert Wilson in 1968 Soule was designated President of the Sinfonia Foundation. The Foundations's recently initiated programs in scholarship, research, the commissioning of new music, and philanthropic outreach are largely attributable to his design. He also chaired the committee which developed recommendations for sweeping revisions in the fraternity's National Constitution and Bylaws which were enacted by the 1970 National Delegate Representative Assembly.

The new President is Chairman of the Department of Music at Central Connecticut State College in New Britain.

Fraternity Adopts New Purposes

As our social and cultural environments change, so must Sinfonia change. As our academic communities reevaluate themselves, so must we if we are to remain relevant to them. And as our student members clearly and unmistakably place increased emphasis on professionalism, so must we recognize this as the real direction of our fraternity in the 1970's. With this in mind we proudly present the following statement of purposes for Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia as adopted by the 1970 National Delegate Representative Assembly.

Robert C. Soule
National President

The primary purpose of this Fraternity shall be to encourage and actively promote the highest standards of creativity, performance, education, and research in music in America. Further purposes shall be to develop and encourage loyalty to the Alma Mater, to foster the mutual welfare and brotherhood of students of music, to develop the truest fraternal spirit among its members, and to instill in all people an awareness of music's important role in the enrichment of the human spirit.

Soule, Adams Attend Conference

Newly elected National President Robert Soule and Executive Secretary Alan Adams represented Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia when the Professional Interfraternity Conference held its 1970 Biennial Meeting at the Cascades Meeting Center, Williamsburg, Virginia, on May 8 and 9.

The theme "Retention and Expansion" was developed through panel discussions on student chapters, alumni participation, ladies' auxiliaries, local professional interfraternity councils, and insurance programs. Contemporary campus conditions were given extensive discussion.

The role of the PIC and its contributions to member fraternities was studied, and suggestions presented for restructuring the organization's program. An interim committee will be appointed to study proposed improvements. A special Meeting of the Conference is to be called before June 1, 1971 with fraternities urged to include student members among their delegates.

The Honorable Benjamin B. Blackburn,

(Sigma Delta Kappa) Congressman from Georgia's Fourth District, addressed the Convention. The idea exchange exhibition, a regular PIC Meeting feature, included displays from several of the member fraternities. An inspiring paper titled "Why Fraternities?" was presented by Dr. Bernard B. Brody of Rho Pi Phi, Chicago, Illinois.

The sessions included special reports on recent federal tax legislation affecting professional fraternities and on the current Federal Trade Commission litigation involving fraternity insignia regulation. Results of the recent survey of professional fraternities were presented, and a new leaflet on professional fraternities was introduced.

The Professional Interfraternity Conference, established in 1928, comprises twenty-six leading professional fraternities in eleven professional fields. These fraternities have initiated over 850,000 men through their more than 1450 student chapters.

Dr. Robert Soule, chairman of the Central Connecticut State College Music Dept., has been elected national president of the world's largest professional music fraternity, Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia.

Dr. Soule, previously elected president of Sinfonia Foundation, a component of the fraternity, has held numerous offices in the national organization. He has also served on committees of the fraternity, which has a total membership of record in excess of 50,000 persons.

A member of the Columbia University Beta Gamma chapter of Sinfonia, he was first elected to a national position in the fraternity in 1959.

He was named a representative to the national executive committee in 1963, became national Committeeman-at-large the following year and was elected second vice president in 1967 by the national delegate assembly which represents the 298 chapters of the fraternity throughout the United States. He will serve a three-year term as national president.

Now in his 24th year at Central, where he has held the rank of full professor since 1956, Dr. Soule has served as chairman of the 13-member Music Department since 1966.

ject of the meeting was to have a picnic and for the sisters to do a little visiting.

After breakfast Sunday morning, while strolling down an almost deserted street in Amarillo, they were stopped dead on seeing a big brown casket sitting on a vacant lot on four short wirestands. It had a tarp thrown carelessly over it and was chained to the ground, but tacked to the wall of a decrepit-looking building behind it was a crooked sign, "USED CASKET FOR SALE OR RENT." There was a crude skeleton drawn up on the sign.

As they were standing there

THE PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER, MONDAY AUGUST 31, 1970

wondering what "the heck" was cooking here, Chester "Hap" Hartridge came along, looking much like a jolly twin brother of Wallace Beery.

"Well . . ." he drawled, in answer to questions, "we jest decided the old man had used it long enough, so we raked him out, figuring to get our money back on the investment!" But the twinkle in his eyes belied any truth in the words.

Actually, if anyone wanted to buy the old casket, they couldn't—as he says, "I get too much fun out of it this way." However, he does rent it out regularly for pranks, spooky meetings, etc. He also gets a lot of fun out of the interest it creates, and he meets all kinds of people as a result.

Mrs. Ralph Jeffry Dies

MASSENA—Mrs. Gertrude S. Jeffry, 55, wife of Ralph W. Jeffry, 95 Maple St., died at 2:45 Monday afternoon in Massena Memorial Hospital, where she had been a patient since Saturday.

The family requests no calling hours.

A private funeral will be held at the Donaldson Funeral Home Wednesday at 2 p.m. Burial will be at Massena.

Contributions may be made to the cancer fund.

Surviving, besides her husband, are two sons, Ralph W., Jr., Massena, James, at home; one daughter, Mrs. Barbara Hall, Massena; five grandchildren; two sisters, Mrs. Theodore (Dorothy) Mustante, Massena, Mrs. Robert (Kathryn) Donnelly, Whitesboro, and one brother, Reginald Soule, Whitesboro.

Born Sept. 3, 1914, at Pratts Hollow, a daughter of Frank and Gertrude Degroodt Soule, she attended Utica schools and was married to Ralph W. Jeffry on March 15, 1936.

She was a member of the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church.

Utica, New York, 17 Aug 1970

Hap owns the business on Amarillo Street next to where the casket sits and it looks like a great big, old-fashioned, cluttered, blacksmith shop, but he does modern electrical work here and had come down on Sunday morning to pick up a drunkard's mess—you know!—the eleven o'clock!—and as he hoped, also to meet a few curious tourists to talk and joke a little with and maybe rent out the old casket again. But for once, Mr. Sowle, from Enid, Oklahoma, face to face with a good thing, couldn't think of a single angle!

Sincerely,
Fern-Ray Abraham

SOULE PERSONALIZED LICENSE PLATES

§ Collecting old and unusual license plates has been my hobby for several years now. It's not an unusual hobby as there is an association of license plate collectors which has about three hundred members in this country and abroad.

Quite a few years ago I started saving the expired plates from my own car. After a few years I became so interested in saving plates that I started to collect them as a hobby. I must have about five hundred by now. It's not quite like collecting postage stamps, the plates take up a lot of space, and of course I could never display them all at once due to the area this would involve.

This got me started in the speciality of collecting unusual plates, such as personalized "SOULE" plates. I now have three "SOULE" plates actually in my collection (pictured right). They are: District of Columbia, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and the State of New Hampshire. A Texas and a Vermont "SOULE" plate has been promised to me when they expire this year. These are the owners by states:

Wash. D. C. - Colonel John Soule (who else!)
 Massachusetts - Mrs. Harold Soule
 New Hampshire - Bryon W. Soule
 Texas - Charles Soule; Mrs. W. F. Soules
 Vermont - S. Allen Soule

I would like to collect as many SOULE, SOWLE, SOULES, SOUL, SOLE, SOLES, SOWLES, etc., plates as possible. Readers can help by letting me know of anyone who owns such plates. The following states issue personalized license plates:

Alaska, Arkansas, California (new), Connecticut, District of Columbia, Maine, Massachusetts, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, Texas, and Vermont. (Did I miss any?)

If we can assemble enough plates together, it would make an interesting display for our next family reunion.

THANKS -- but HELP: . . .

A big THANK YOU to all the Soule cousins that have been sending in NEWS that we need so much now that we do no longer have the news clip service. We need some HELP though and your editor asks that the following be done.

- When sending in a news clipping, please give the paper's name, date, & town. This can easily be done by cutting your clip so the top of the page goes with it.
- When writing up an article please remember the vastness of the huge Soule family. (ie: Since we have EIGHT Robert Soules in the Kindred, try to use middle names.) Use full details... write up your news as if you were telling it to a complete stranger. Your Soule Kindred Newsletter editor screams when he gets letters like, "Our son married Jane...". We have to then dig up son's name. ARTICLES TYPED UP FOR DIRECT PRINTING we dearly love of course.

§ We still have two photos available of the 1970 reunion for $1.25.

EDITOR'S COMMENT: The preparation of the following article had been held in low priority due to precedent normally accorded the feature for each issue and, of course, the dragging Five Generation Project. However, we have recently received a barrage of queries, both directly and through several of our members and correspondents, concerning this branch. As a consequence, we have prevailed upon the Family Historian to place this in proper perspective.

Doctor ALDEN[?] SOULE (1779-1870)

By Colonel John Soule, Family Historian

ALDEN SOULE (Sowle in most early records to and including the 1850 Census and on his death certificate) was born at Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts in or about 1779 (Death Certificate MassVR 229:27) and died at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 10 Jan 1870 aged 91. His mother was Mary Chanter but his father was "unkown" according to said death certificate. An as yet unsupported family tradition says this Alden Soule's father was one John Alden Soule and the son was christened John Alden Soule, Jr. but preferred to use his middle name. The name Alden Soule first appears in public records 14 Jan 1802 when as a laborer he acquired land in Lee (Berkshire County DB 40:129). There are numerous subsequent land transactions in which he alone and with wife Nancy bought and sold property in the Berkshire County towns of Lee, Peru, Hinsdale and Becket. Strangely enough, there is no Soule or variant enumerated in this area in either the 1790 or 1800 U. S. Census returns. Alden Soule or Sowle was first enumerated at Peru in 1810 but appeared at Becket in 1820, 1830, 1840, 1850, 1860 and 1870. Originally a laborer and later a farmer, he first appears as a "physician" in the 1850 Census and is so described thereafter until his death. However, nothing has been found concerning his formal medical education - if any! Although no record of his marriage has been found, we surmise that it probably took place either in adjoining Litchfield County, Connecticut or in Berkshire County, Massachusetts in or shortly before 1804. We favor the former as to place! From her death certificate (MassVR 310:26) we do know that his wife was Nancy de Forest, born in Salisbury, Litchfield County, Connecticut in or about 1784, the daughter of James & Julia (-?-) de Forest. She died at Becket on 18 Jan 1879.

Their children (from family bible, U. S. Census Returns, vital records of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and town records as well as cemetery inscriptions) were:

- i. Lewis Mills^{?+1} Soule born at Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 12 Apr 1805 and died at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 31 Jan 1881; married at Becket on 25 Mar 1832 Betsey Rowena Root born at Becket ca Oct 1808 and died at Becket on 29 Mar 1894.
- ii. Alden Chanter Soule born at Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 31 Dec 1806 and died at Otis, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 6 Mar 1884; married at Blandford, Hampden County, Massachusetts on 24 Sep 1838 Hannah Woodward Jackson born at Blandford on 13 Sep 1810 and died at Otis on 4 Jun 1895.
- iii. Nancy Eleanor Soule born at Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 10 May 1806 and died at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 10 Mar 1876. Although she apparently never married, she bore a son who died at Becket 13 May 1844 aged 1 month and 6 days.
- iv. Caroline Josephine Soule born at Peru, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 5 Sep 1811 and died at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 2 Mar 1831 [GR - 1834 per bible]; married at Becket on 24 Nov 1829 to Russell Nugent. We have no details concerning him except that he appears subsequently to have married a younger sister of Caroline's.

- v. Jonathan Wally Sowle born at Peru or Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 18 Aug 1817 and died at Lee, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 12 Nov 1853 [MassVR 93:34] or possibly by drowning in Housatonic River at Housatonic, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 2 Dec 1855 [as reported from GR in West Becket Cemetery]; married at Becket on 5 Feb 1840 Harriet M. Broga born at Becket in 1821 and died at Becket 27 Jun 1844 of consumption [as given in Becket Vital Records and MassVR 14:16] or 23 Jun 1844 [as reported from GR in West Becket Cemetery].
- vi. Louisa Mariah Soule [also given as Louisa Marion Soule] born at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 19 Nov 1819 and probably died in that vicinity before 1870; married first Samuel Shaw and second Russell Nugent [mentioned in Berkshire County Probate Case No. 11,001 covering the estate of Alden Soule as "deceased wife of Russell Nugent"]. Dates and places of birth, marriage and deaths of Samuel Shaw and Russell Nugent have not been ascertained.
- vii. Gilbert Mortier Lafayette Soule [usually called "Lafayette Soule"] was born at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 25 Dec 1823 and died at Bloomington, McLean County, Illinois on 19 Jan 1918; married possibly at Bloomington and probably in the mid-1850s Amelia Barr born at Renfrew, Scotland on 1 Jan 1832 and died at Bloomington on 4 Jan 1916.
- viii. Doctor Mazaldis Alexander Soule born at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 25 Mar 1826 and died at Becket on 6 Mar 1904; married at Becket in 1862 Charlotte L? A? Hall born at Tyringham, Berkshire County in Feb 1845 (?), daughter of Samuel & Jane Hall, and died at Lee, Berkshire County on 16 Aug 1869 or 1870 [both dates copied by different observers from GR at Tyringham Cemetery].
- ix. Jerome Bonaparte Soule born at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 19 May 1828 and died at Blandford, Hampden County, Massachusetts on 18 Mar 1896; married at Becket on 4 Jul 1853 Mary L Morehouse born in Connecticut on 24 Sep 1834 and died at Chester, Hampden County, Massachusetts on 13 Jun 1907.
- x. Emogene Antoinette Soule born at Becket, Berkshire County, Massachusetts on 15 Jul 1830 and died there on 21 or 29 Oct 1837.

SOULE KINDRED continues actively interested in establishing the ancestry and extending our collection of data on the descendants of Dr. Alden Soule. Admittedly, his "unknown" father and the absence of a Soule resident enumerated in the area in either the first U. S. Census in 1790 or the second in 1800 complicates the research problem - even suggests the possibility of illegitimacy. On the other hand, the early use of Sowle by this branch and the existence of a large Sowle family in nearby Hampden County centered in and around Wilbraham suggests a possible connection. The latter family apparently migrated from Tiverton, Rhode Island to Tolland, Connecticut (where three members of the family served in the American Revolution) and thence into Massachusetts. The several Soule families then living in even closer New York state cannot be eliminated from consideration as a possible ancestral connection. We wish we knew!

News from PLYMOUTH

Well over a hundred of our readers will recognize this site of the 1970 Grand Soule Reunion. It's now THE GOVERNOR CARVER MOTOR INN - only very slightly changed since last September. A partition has been built across the spacious lobby cutting off the large fireplace. Our Registration area, so ably presided over by Betty-Jean Haner and her mother plus Augusta Nancy Soule and her family, is now a part of the adjoining meeting room.

Most of us have seen and perhaps used the six cent commemorative postage stamp honoring the 350th Anniversary of the arrival in the New World of the Mayflower with GEORGE SOULE and his fellow Pilgrims. This stamp was first issued at Plymouth 21 Nov 1970 with appropriate ceremony. Many of our kindred were present on that occasion. Here is a facsimile of the official "First Day Cover":

News from INDIANA

SOULE kin elected Historian of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of INDIANA!

Our cousin thus recognized and honored is Mary Josephine¹¹ (Thomas) Crismore - Mrs. Frank A. Crismore of Indianapolis. She is the granddaughter of Ann Maria⁹ Drake with descent thru Osmer⁸ Drake, David⁷ Drake, Oliver⁶ Drake, John⁵ Drake, Ann⁴ Walker, Francis³ Walker, Jr and Elizabeth² (Soule) Walker to George¹ Soule of the Mayflower [Kindred No. 113601]. Cousin Mary Thomas has worked some 20-years at Indiana University's Medical Center and has been sufficiently interested in Genealogy to trace her DAR Lineage as well as the Mayflower line; also to publish a book on the Crismore family. With such a "friend in court", and Soule/Sowle cousin residing in Indiana or desirous of joining the Indiana Society should now have smooth sailing into Mayflower Society membership.

Cousin Mary Thomas has been fantastically helpful in researching the immensely valuable Indiana records available in Indiana State Library to contribute to our planned article on the SOULES FAMILY of VIGO COUNTY as well as otherwise enriching our knowledge of the family in the "Hoosier State". Incidentally, while we had originally promised the Vigo County story for the April 1971 issue of SOULE NEWSLETTER, we no doubt that it can be ready before the October issue at best!

And from Elsewhere

No less than thirteen (13) Republican governors were replaced with Democrats in the nation-wide elections of 3 Nov 1970. Soule cousin and South Dakota's Republican Governor Frank Leroy Farrar (see SOULE NEWSLETTER 4:1-3 of January 1970) was one of the casualties after only one term. Democratic State Senator Richard F. Kneip, reputedly a "moderate liberal", received 55% of the votes cast in the nation's 40th state.

Another charter member of SOULE KINDRED has passed on! Lacking only a few weeks of a start on her Second Century, ANNIE EFFIE¹⁰ (SOULE') DREYER died in Beverly Manor at Yreka, California on 21 October 1970. She was the sixth of the ten children of Stephen Hogeboom⁹ & Lucinda Maria (Boyes) Soule'. Her parents crossed the plains in a covered wagon in 1861 and settled in the Little Shasta Valley of Siskiyou County, California where eight of their ten children were born. Annie Effie Soule' was born there 31 Dec 1870 and lived there most of her life. Married at Redding, Shasta County, California on 15 Sep 1920 to Edward Frederick Dreyer (1871-1941), she lost her husband in an automobile accident near Merrill, Oregon. There were no children. Living alone at her Little Shasta Ranch until September 1968 - aged nearly 98, she was well known and widely loved. Always maintaining an active part in the life of the Little Shasta Valley, she saw the West develop and took an influential part in both the farmer's interests and the cultural and social life of "The Valley". Her ranch raised beautiful flowers and vegetables while she took a vigorous and guiding part in the Siskiyou County Historical Society, the Daughters of the American Revolution, the Society of Mayflower descendants, and the local Grange. We are told that she was alert to the end and always enjoyed SOULE NEWSLETTER; also that over forty (40) donations have been given in her memory for the restoration of the century old Little Shasta Church. This Congregational Church was established by the early settlers in Little Shasta Valley. Stephen Hogeboom Soule' and his family were active members while his oldest brother Andrew Soule' (1832-1920) was Sunday School Superintendent for many years. The middle brother was famed Professor George Soule' (1834-1926) of New Orleans, Louisiana who founded Soule' College and was progenitor of a large family there. [EDITOR'S NOTE: Our gratitude to Mrs. Dorothy H. Irvine of Salinas, California for her promptness in reporting the death of her aged aunt and for her help in supplementing the records of the family Historian to complete the foregoing obituary.]

SOULE NEWSLETTER 4:137-139 (July 1970) contained a brief history of the founding at Monmouth College on 28 Apr 1867 the first woman's college fraternity (most of the others are now known as "sororities"). We gave the family connections of one of the twelve founders - Inez (Smith) Soule, in considerable detail; also listed all of the Soule daughters known to be members.

Faithful KINDRED member Helen Maria¹⁰ (Hascall) Carnes - and apparently equally faithful wearer of "The Arrow" of Pi Beta Phi, has sent us a communication from Pi Beta Phi Fraternity's Executive Secretary Sally Perry Schulenburg (Mrs. Ralph) listing the following additional Pi Phis whose maiden name was Soule:

Historical Gleanings

Contributed by The Reverend Gilbert H. Doane from the 1917 membership files of the New England Historic Genealogical Society:

"Louis Hollenbeck Soule, who joined the Society from Rye, N.Y. stated

he was born at Greene, Chenango County, New York on 10 Apr 1865; was married on 29 Aug 1891 to Kate Thompson Strock and had one daughter - Cora Inez Soule, born 23 Apr 1895. His father was Benaiah Soule born at Smithville, Chenango County on 22 Feb 1840 and his mother was Rexaville Adelia Hollenbeck born at Greene, Chenango County on 8 Jul 1842. His paternal grandparents were Loren Soule & Katherine Hill; great-grandparents were Nathan Soule & Harriet Tyler and his great-great-grandparents were Nathan Soule and Sarah Birdsall."

HISTORIAN'S COMMENT: It should be born in mind that this Society does not require any proof or evidence of claimed lineages. Some years ago we tried without success to establish the ancestry of this particular Loren Soule. Unfortunately, it would appear that this supposed lineage still leaves us in the dark. Nathan⁵ Soule (1738-1806) who married 31 Oct 1762 Sarah Birdsall was a miller at Pawling, Dutchess County, New York left a will dated 3 May 1806 and proved 4 Oct 1806 now recorded on page 45 of Will Book "C" in the office of the Dutchess County Surrogate. This will identifies himself as of "Pawlingstown" and bequeaths to wife Sarah, sister Alie (or Alce), daughter Mary, sons Latten, John, Thomas and Benjamin, daughters Jane Lane, Elizabeth Simpson, Anna Ward and Sarah Lane. Neither the 1790 nor the 1800 Census of Pawling, nor any other Dutchess County record suggests the possibility of a son Nathan - certainly he is not named in the will. Consequently, we must conclude that the lineage offered by Louis Hollenbeck Soule is in error; also, that the question regarding the ancestry of Loren Soule remains unsolved.

Contributed by George L. Tillery of Washington, D.C.: "Finding Your Forefathers in America" by Archibald Bennett (1957) pp 86-87 cites will of Robert Bennett of Wiveliscombe, Somerset, England 8 Aug 1603 naming son-in-law JOHN SOULE.

+ + + + + + + + + + + +

Contributed by Luella Hoover (Mrs. Max M.) of Hyattsville, Maryland: "My great uncle and family arrived by boat from Germany at New Orleans 18 May 1847 on the ship HAIDEE with C. H. Soule, master. That is all I have but might be helpful. Originally found some years ago but ran into again this morning while typing Lalk family notes."

HISTORIAN'S COMMENT: Many of our readers may recognize HAIDEE as an old friend. She has been mentioned before in these columns - thusly:

- 3:123 List of ships built in SOULE SHIPYARD at South Freeport, Maine by Howard W. Soule of Honolulu: Ship HAIDEE 655 Tons 1943
Went ashore on Florida reef, refloated. Mutiny.
- 2:55 List of fastest sailing vessel abstracted from Cutler's "Greyhounds of the Sea" - HAIDEE 647.56 tons, 142 feet long X 31 feet 7½ inches beam; built in Freeport, Maine 1843; master Captain Joseph S. Soule; owner Isaac T. Smith, New York.
- 3:123 Arrivals at the port of New Orleans - 23 Dec 1848 ship HAIDEE from Liverpool, J. T. Soule, master.
- 3:20 Arrivals at the port of San Francisco - 12 Dec 1850 ship HAIDEE 187 days from New York via Valparaiso, Chile; Captain Soule, master.

It appears to us that there would be quite a SOULE story to be told about HAIDEE if her log could be located and perused. Obviously built by Cousin Howard Soule's ancestors and apparently skippered by more than one "Captain Soule, Master", it seems possible that she also had junior officers and crewmen before the mast also bearing the Soule name.
